Liesha, FJWU is the first and the largest women's university in Pakistan. It is a general university teaching both science and humanities subjects. The campus is located in the old Presidency and the Vice Chancellor's office surely must be one of the most beautiful in the world since it is the former President's office!

This is indeed a university in very good standing. Its graduates are doing well in the market and the HEC has given it significant funds to develop over the past five years. Now they have acquired a new 200 acre piece of land outside the city of Rawalpindi where they have the city campus, and they are busy building a very nice new campus.

Dear Sohail

I don't think I've emailed you about the latest application for membership. Please indicate the good standing of the Fatima Jinnah Women University with HEC.

Thank you.

Kind regards

Liesha Northover
